Young Men's Association.

TROY, N. Y.:
PUBLISHED FOR THE ASSOCIATION.
1859.

PREFACE.

On the 22d of December, 1834, the Troy Young Men's Association was organized by the election of a full board of officers; and its commencement may be dated at that period. In the following year, the whole number of books in its library amounted to 1,222, including between 600 and 800 volumes which belonged to the "Troy Library." In 1844, these volumes became the property of the Association. The number of books possessed by the Association in 1852 was 5,356. During the ensuing year, 2,750 volumes were added. In the Annual Report for December, 1858, the number of volumes in the Library was stated at 10,036: to these were added, in the course of 1859, 2,031; making the whole number of books in the Library, exclusive of volumes of newspapers, 12,067, which is the aggregate described in this Catalogue.

The first catalogue of the Library was prepared in the year 1840. It was comprised in a small 16mo. pamphlet of 48 pages, and contained less than 1200 one-line titles. This was followed by the more ample catalogue of 1850, an 8vo. pamphlet of 54 pages. A supplementary catalogue of 48 pages was published on the 1st of February, 1853, to which, on the 20th of February of the same year, 11 pages were added, containing the titles of about 170 volumes. On the 28th day of April, 1859, the question of preparing a new catalogue was broached at the Executive Board, and fully discussed. The issue of this discussion was the appointment of a committee to which the whole matter was confided, with power to engage a person or persons to prepare a catalogue at such charge as the committee should think reasonable. The undersigned, with whom an engagement for the preparation of a catalogue was made by the said committee, entered upon their labors early in July, 1859. It was not without some doubt touching their ability to produce a catalogue which would be at once simple in arrangement and full in details, that they began the undertaking. After a thorough examination of many systems of cataloguing, they adopted the one followed in this volume, a system, agreeing, in its main features, with a plan originated by Charles C. Jewett, Esq., and which has been found to meet the requirements of a circulating library.

It will be noticed that the arrangement of the Catalogue is alphabetical throughout. It is therefore, plain that reference to its contents resembles reference to the contents of a dictionary. It cannot be supposed, however, that, within the limited space appropriate for a volume like this, it would be possible to enter the titles of works in full. Yet it is believed that, in a condensed form, information sufficient for ordinary purposes has been exhibited. Perhaps an idea of the plan of the Catalogue cannot be conveyed more clearly, than as by the following example. At page 137, the reader will find, in its alphabetical position, this entry:

MITCHELL, O. M. Planetary and stellar worlds. New York, 1848. 12° 11.5

Here the name of the writer is first given: and then follow the title of the book, the place where and the year in which the book was printed, its size, and the division and shelf of the library where it may be found. At page 163, the same book is referred to by its title, in these words:

PLANETARY and stellar worlds. Mitchell, O. M..... 11.5

Again, at page 13, the same book is entered under the science of which it treats, as follows:

ASTRONOMY. Mitchell, O. M. Planetary and stellar worlds..... 11.5

From this sample it will be seen that, when the inquirer knows the name of an author, or the title of a book, or the subject of which a book treats, any of these will be a sufficient guide to show him whether the particular information, and the particular form in which he desires to obtain it, are to be found in the library.

In cases where a variety of topics are handled in the same volume, each of those topics is, not unfrequently, noted under its specific title. Thus, it often happens that the same book is enumerated under many different titles; and there are a few instances in which references are given to the same book, under ten, twenty, and even thirty several headings. It will be observed further, that, under the name of an author, an alphabetical list of his works is given, and that, under the title of a subject, the names of the different works on that subject are indicated. Perfection is by no means claimed for this Catalogue; but it is thought that, by its aid, the student and the scholar, as well as the general reader, will at once be supplied with a key to the rich stores of learning and amusement which the library comprehends.

In the latter pages of this book will be found a list of the bound volumes of Newspapers in the Library Room, and a table of the Newspapers and Periodicals in the Reading Room. The number of titles under which the library is catalogued is about 15,000. The assistance which the undersigned have received from Henry P. Filer, Esq., the faithful, experienced, and assiduous librarian of the Association, in the facilities which have been afforded, by him, personally and otherwise, for inspecting the books in the library, during the preparation of this volume, is gratefully acknowledged.

CHARLES L. ALDEN.

The large increase in the number of books in the library, and the constant call for a new Catalogue, seems to make it imperative that a supplement should be published at this time. The total number of books, as reported in the preface of the last catalogue, was 12,067; add to this 5,356, the number catalogued in this supplement, we find the total number of books in the library at this date to be 17,423. Of this number 1,696 have been received from bequest of William R. Yount, who died May 24, 1862.

The following is the extract from his will: "I hereby give and bequeath to the Troy Young Men's Association the sum of ($5000) Five Thousand Dollars for the following uses and purposes, viz: Three Thousand Dollars of said sum shall be expended in the purchase of books, chiefly historical, under the direction of my said Executors, and the books so purchased shall be kept in a separate alcove in the Library Room of said Association, to be designated by my surname, and a suitable inscription shall be placed in each book; and the remaining Two Thousand Dollars of said sum shall be invested by said Association, so long as the same may be, lawfully, and its income applied in the maintaining and adding to such alcove and its contents; and in case such investment shall be or become unlawful, then the said sum shall also at once be expended in the purchase of books for such alcove."

These books have been selected with great care by Mr. C. L. Alden, Executor, assisted by Messrs. B. H. Hall and H. P. Filer. They form a very valuable feature in the library, and are contained in an alcove by themselves. In the supplement they are of course arranged under their appropriate headings, but may be distinguished from the books in the general library by the letters Y. A. opposite each name. The same general arrangement as used in the original catalogue has been adopted in the supplement, except that the books may not be classified under as many headings. They have, however, at least two, viz: the title, and the name of the author. The supplement has been prepared under the superintendence of our former and present Librarians, Messrs. T. B. Heimstreet and F. H. Stevens. A revised list of the newspapers and periodicals in the Reading Room may be found on pages 110 and 111 of the supplement.
